

ABSTRACT

A highly efficient process is provided for producing an optically active compound having high optical purity by an asymmetric reaction using as a catalyst a transition metal complex
5 having an optically active nitrogen-containing compound as an asymmetric ligand.